OF the city assessment roll, amounting to $45,800, the officers have collected $35,808—over three-fourths of the total amount. Nearly the entire taxes on real estate will be collected. A considerable sum due on personal property will be delinquent. The City Water Company's taxes are in the neighborhood of $450, which will be delinquent, as that corporation has uniformly refused to pay taxes. They pay the city $400 per annum, for which they claim an exemption from taxation. It will be seen that the city would be the gainer if she gave them the bonus and required the payment of their taxes.

THE Evening Express, while pretending to point out the causes which prevent many people from taking up their residence in this city, carefully avoids mentioning that it prevented many families coming here by publishing a false statement to the effect that the scarletina was an epidemic in this city. Our little cotemporary may find another and very powerful reason why respectable families cannot live in certain localities in this city, by reading a communication under the head of "The Mayorality" in another column of this morning's HERALD. The city cannot afford to indulge the peculiarities of her TIFANIES, when through them an enforcement of the law is withheld and in consequence a "festering nuisance" maintained.

THE readers of the HERALD will remember that when the proposition was under consideration in the Council to pay the City Assessor $700 more than the amount of his annual salary as fixed by ordinance, Mr. BEAUDRY opposed the motion on the ground that it would be better that the payment of this extra sum be deferred until it was known that the City Assessor had faithfully performed his duty. His suggestion did not meet the approval of the majority of the Council, and the extra $700 was paid before a sufficient time had elapsed to determine whether the assessment had been faithfully or imperfectly performed. The wisdom of Mr. BEAUDRY's suggestion is now apparent. The minutes of the City Clerk show that already twenty-three persons have called to pay their taxes against whom the Assessor's books show no assessment.

About Assessment.

The Express devotes an unusual amount of time and space to comments on the circumstance that high land lots which Mr. BEAUDRY now holds at $200 each were assessed at $40. We have shown that the enhanced value of the property in question is due to the fact that the Supreme Court has decided that such a thing as an exclusive franchise, or the right to supply water, gas, or anything within a specified limit cannot exist, and that the property is now supplied with water. But there is one other point to which we wish to call the attention of the Express, which is that as late as March of this year Mr. BEAUDRY purchased a number of these lots from Mr. MOTT—a gentleman far too shrewd to sell them for less than what he supposed would be their value without water—at prices not exceeding $21 each. Yet a short time after and before the special water franchise melted into thin air, those lots were assessed at $40 apiece. In regard to the charge that Mr. BEAUDRY requested that some portions of his assessment be reduced, we may say that the facts seem to warrant his doing so, or else justify the Board of Equalization in raising the assessment of others, as property below the level of a ditch is assessed at $20 per acre, while land owned by Mr. BEAUDRY lying three-fourths of a mile further from the heart of the city and without water is assessed at $50 per acre. Portions of the plat assessed at $20 per acre have lately sold at the rate of $1,000 per acre, while Mr. BEAUDRY could not sell that assessed at $50 per acre for one-fourth that amount. If the Express will take the trouble to examine the list it will find that there is a large amount of property in the city of much greater value than that owned by Mr. BEAUDRY assessed at a smaller figure than his.

What Does it Signify.

This great political revolution has come upon us like a whirlwind. But from whence it came and whither it is going we know not. Every man you meet can give you a reason for this great political change, which is conclusive, in his estimation, but of the hundreds we have listened to, no two agree. We do not believe it is the popularity of one party, nor the unpopularity of the other party that caused the change. To sum it up in a few words, it is just this: "We are tired of what we had, and we want something else." That is all there is of it. We want a change and knowing we could not be damaged by any change that could be made, we shut our eyes and bolted it down, like the old Con federate soldiers used to bolt their tough beef. They did it because there was nothing better. If the Democratic party acts upon the supposition that the popularity of their party caused the change, the victory will be fruitless. No, it was not that; the people are oppressed and they know it, and this change came upon the same principle that a drowning man will catch at a straw, and the result will be the same; either the party will be submerged and go to the bottom, or they must prove by their acts that they have sufficient buoyancy to hold a sinking country above the tremendous waves and surges of this political contest. We have hopes for the best, but our hopes are mingled with fears. That the people generally will be greatly disappointed we have no doubt, and if this disappointment causes a reaction, our last state will be worse than the first. The people have been greatly oppressed by the burden of high taxes, and they are quite satisfied in their own minds that taxation will be very light in the future, perhaps not greater than it was before the war. To contrast the taxes we pay now, with the taxes paid when the Democratic party was in power, has been the great hobby of political demagogues. This was, perhaps the most effective argument before the masses, and if this does not prove to be a boomerang to the party in 1876 we shall be agreeably disappointed. The reaction is what we have to dread. The parties and the people are all demoralized, and in such a state revolutions are quick and overwhelming. The people are restless under the heavy, galling yoke of taxation and are ready to throw it off upon any terms. Yes, "any terms." They will vote for any party that agrees to lift this burden from them, but woe be to that party that promises and fails to redeem its promises. That taxation can be greatly reduced by judicious legislation, we have no doubt, but that taxation can be immediately reduced to anything near what it was previous to 1860 is preposterous. The expenses of the Government must necessarily be greater now than then; besides the national debt and annual interest must be met. But that taxation can be reduced and corruptionists kicked out of office can and ought to be done; but have we the men to do it? That is the question. Our old statesmen that used to stand at the helm and guide the old ship are all gone or retired and their places are filled by men brought to the surface through accident, without qualification or merit. The most critical examination of all the addresses and documents emanating from Congressmen and Legislators for the past ten years would fail to exhibit one man who has risen above party prejudices and presented a broad view of the whole country and the wants of all the people. The school in which our modern statesmen have been educated unfits them for such broad views. The best of them are nothing but political critics. They have been trained to detect the faults of their opponents more than to look at the great wants of the nation. Place-hunters and demagogues have been fighting for power, and statesmen are not made out of such material. Real statesmen, who know the responsibility of position, assume control with great trepidation. Statesmen do not grow up like mushrooms; it requires a lifetime to make a statesman. WEBSTER, CLAY and CALHOUN spent a lifetime in the study of the great problem, and with them timidity increased with wisdom. Some are ready to ask if we have any such men left. Yes; but they are not office-seekers. The office must seek them. If any such have been brought out in this great revolution, they will make their mark in Congress. The field is now open for the greatest and most successful statesmanship; but the people should not expect too much. It will require time and great skill to untangle the skein. Besides, the majority of Congress are new men, and if they are as wise as Moses and as honest as SAMUEL they must have time to understand the situation before they can accomplish anything for our relief. Let us not expect too much.

THE MAYORALTY—No. 1.

In the list of candidates now before the people of Los Angeles for the office of Mayor, there is one upon whose record as a public officer it would be prudent for all, and especially the moral and law-supporting portion of the inhabitants of this city to ponder and carefully consider before aiding, assisting or passively assenting to his election. This candidate was lately foreman of a Grand Jury of Los Angeles county.

By scrutinizing the actions of that Grand Jury, the people of this city may be able to form a judgment of the respect which this candidate has for the laws under which they live, his regard for the sanctity and obligations of an oath freely and voluntarily taken, and therefrom reach a fair and safe conclusion of the course which would be pursued by him in the event of his becoming the chief magistrate of this city.

In the statute book of this State the following may be found: "Every person who keeps a house of ill-fame in this State, resorted to for the purpose of prostitution or lewdness; or who willfully resides in such house, or any house for the purpose of assignation or prostitution, or any house of public resort by which the peace, comfort or decency of the immediate neighborhood is habitually disturbed, or who keeps any inn in a disorderly manner; and every person who rents any apartment or tenement, knowing that it is to be used for the purpose of assignation or prostitution, is guilty of a misdemeanor."

On the 22d of October of this year the Grand Jury above referred to made their final report, signed by their Foreman, who had taken an oath administered to him in open Court, of which the following is a part: "You, as Foreman of the Grand Jury, will diligently inquire into all public offenses against the people of this State, committed or triable within this county. You will present no person through malice, hatred or ill-will, nor leave any unrepresented through fear, favor or affection, or for any reward or hope thereof—so help you God."

In that report the following will be found: "With regard to the existence of 'houses of prostitution, to which the attention of the Grand Jury was directed, we would state that as no case of the kind was presented for our examination and none known to us personally, we could take no action in the matter."

In another section of the statute will be found the following: "If a member of the Grand Jury knows or has reason to believe that a public offense triable in this county has been committed, he must declare the same to his fellow-jurors, who must thereupon investigate the same."

In the report of the Grand Jury the Foreman admits that his attention, as a Grand Juror, had been directed to the existence of houses of prostitution in this county, and yet, as a member of that Grand Jury, with the law making it his imperative duty to investigate the matter, he deliberately and with a full knowledge of the facts that afflict society, in which, notwithstanding the solemn oath under which he rested, levity, prudery and affectation are most extraordinarily blended.

Having sworn to diligently inquire into and investigate all public offenses of which he had any knowledge or reason to believe had an existence, he not only neglects the performance of his duty, but, as if in a spirit of wantonness, he tells those citizens whose neighborhood is so contaminated by the public display of this very offense that they are being compelled, for the safety of their children to abandon their homes, that as a case of prostitution was not before the Grand Jury for their personal observation, and as they, the pure souls, had never been personally cognizant of such an act, they were under no obligations to take any action in the matter.

This Grand Jury, by their Foreman, are made to declare that all the business presented to them had been dispatched, and this Foreman, under the responsibility of a solemn oath, asserts that he had no reason to believe there was within the borders of this county such a thing as a house of prostitution, while every moderately well informed inhabitant knows that in some parts of this city their unblushing publicity is so great and insufferable as to drive from those parts the families of decent citizens, whose repeated complaints to the Grand Jury have failed to procure relief.

This Foreman of the Grand Jury who now seeks to become the chief magistrate of this city and its first executive officer, unabashed by this declaration of innocence and in the face of his statement made under oath that he had no reason to believe there was in the county a house of ill-fame or public resort by which the peace, comfort or decency of the immediate neighborhood was habitually disturbed, does most effectually stultify himself in the same paragraph by calling the attention of the municipal authorities to the subject of prostitution, and recommending to them to immediately suppress those houses of prostitution and to imprison their inmates.

It would not be alleged by the Foreman, if he was so inclined, that at the time of signing and making his report to the Court, he was ignorant of the existence of many houses of prostitution within the county, because a confession of ignorance so great would prove conclusively his incompetency for the office of Mayor. If, on the contrary, he knew or had reason to believe that there was one house of this class within the county and failed to diligently inquire into the facts, he committed as willful perjury, although less in degree as he goes into Court and deliberately swears that a person accused has committed a crime when he knows the accused is innocent.

Again: If he had said truthfully that he had no reason to believe there was such a house in the county, he would not in the same breath have called the attention of the city authorities to the matter. By thus calling upon the city authorities, faithless to their sworn duty, he acknowledged together with a brazenness of self-stultifying seldom witnessed.

Latest Election Returns.

NEW YORK, November 9th.—Tilden's majority in this State will be at least 55,000.

The Democratic majority in Alabama is not less than 15,000. The Democrats have in the State Legislature a majority of 23.

The Democrats will have a majority of twenty in the Florida Legislature. In Massachusetts the official count of the Congressional election in the Fourth District gives the election to Frost (Rep.) by a small majority.

Official returns from all but four counties of Pennsylvania make Latta's (Dem.) majority for Lieutenant-Governor 13,015.

The election in the Fifth New Jersey Congressional district is still in doubt. One account gives Cutler (Dem.) five majority. Allowing Phelps all the imperfect ballots, Phelps think he has one majority.

Harden (Dem.) will have 35,000 majority for Governor in Missouri. The Democrats claim a majority in the State Senate of 25, and in the House of Representatives 35.

The Democrats and Independents have a majority of twenty-two on joint ballot in the Illinois Legislature.

NEW ORLEANS, November 9th.—Returns, official and reported, give Monroe (Conservative), for State Treasurer, 7,150 majority. The Republicans still claim the election of Duboulet by a small majority.

Vice-President Wilson on the Late Elections.

CHICAGO, November 10th.—A New York special gives a report of an interview with Vice-President Wilson. He did not consider that the result of the election through or permanent revolution in public opinion, or that this result foreshadowed the conclusion of the next Presidential campaign. But the Republican party, to regain what it has lost, he said, must adopt a wise, liberal and high-toned policy. It must crowd its ranks with all the worthy elements it can secure, and must be careful not to alienate any good man from the party. The result of the elections has shown the necessity of a magnanimous and liberal policy. It shows that the Republican leader must be a statesman. The need of the time is a statesman. With such a leader the party will be strengthened and helped by the policy which the Democrats will pursue after their accession to power. The history of the Democratic party for the last twenty years has been a series of blunders. It has been too easy to conduct affairs to the satisfaction of the country, and that it is a much harder labor than to find fault with the Republican method of administration. I find no reason to think that their course will contrast favorably with that of the Republicans. I don't know what financial policy they will pursue, but the heresy of hard money don't appear to have gained anything in these elections.

It was very emphatic in his opposition to the third term, even for the best man that ever lived, and with much feeling refuted the idea that Massachusetts had gone over to the Democrats.

The little son of Wm. Avel, who was stabbed by a Chinaman yesterday, died to-day.

Ophir went to $175 this morning on the street, and as suddenly dropped to $90. Many operators were heavy losers. There was much excitement on California street when it was known how it had tumbled.

There was no insurance on the steamer Sacramento, burned at the Broadway wharf this morning. The total loss, about $20,000, to steamer alone, $15,000. Chief Engineer Scannell slipped and fell during the fire, breaking several of his ribs, and a truckman was also severely hurt.

Three-fingered Jack, or Jack Sheppard, who is wanted in Los Angeles, was arrested here last night and will be sent to that place for trial for burglary.

Teachers' Institute.

[FOURTH DAY.]

THURSDAY, Nov. 12th.

The Institute opened at 9 A. M. with music by the committee and a prayer by Dr. Lucky.

Miss Maggie Hamilton and Mr. Saxon were appointed critics for the day, and Mr. Kimball Sergeant-at-Arms.

Miss Casad then read the criticisms on yesterday's proceedings, giving a piquant list of corrected errors.

Miss Des Granges read and answered several questions from the query-box, which report, together with that afterwards made by Mr. Guinn, was accepted.

Mr. Lowery's essay, "Progress," then introduced, treated of the subject in a chaste, skillful manner, and the ideas embodied received the applause they merited.

Mr. Guinn read the remainder of the query-box questions, answering them with considerable wit and judgment, scope for the exercise of these being afforded by several of the inquiries.

Mr. C. C. Cummings read an essay, in which he manifested a decided preference for public rather than private schools, as well as a genuine enthusiasm in his profession. One of the features was an objection to the establishment of schools by churches on the ground that the work could be done better in public institutions.

Mr. Devine differed from the essayist in this particular and supported his own views very ably.

A motion was made to suspend the rule limiting speakers to five minutes' time, but the motion was lost.

After the recess the Musical Committee reported in "Twilight," after which Prof. Carr continued his lecture. The Professor advocated the practice of teaching children principles by illustration derived from occurrences, and objects familiar to them. The remarks were simple and plain, but very suggestive. Repeated applause interrupted the speaker and attested the interest felt. Experiments were made, showing various properties of carbonic acid and chemical details connected with combustion, in such simple instances as the burning of candles, the ignition of matches, etc. In this educational connection we would suggest that Prof. Carr be invited to deliver during his stay among us one or more lectures to the advanced classes of our city schools. It would be of great value to the pupils.

Prof. Seales, a gentleman from the Southeastern States, was present during the morning and was elected an honorary member of the Institute.

In the afternoon order was called at half-past 1 o'clock, and after roll-call and music, S. A. Waldron introduced a small class, and with them demonstrated a commendable method of teaching penmanship. Afterward, the same teacher exercised another class on the intricacies of nouns, verbs and other grammatical mazes.

Mr. Saxo was unable to contribute his share of the exercises, owing to indisposition.

Mr. N. D. Robinson expressed his ideas—good ones, too—on teaching arithmetic.

Dr. Lucky delivered an eloquent address on "Professional Improvement," impressing upon his hearers the dignity of teaching as a profession. Applause was frequent during the address, and all seemed much pleased with it.

The exercises were terminated by a lecture of some length from Rev. Dr. White on "American Education." The address was well written and earnestly delivered and was received with attentive interest by the large audience.

The Institute then adjourned until 9 A. M. Friday, the 13th.

The programme for to-day is as follows: Morning—Music; original poem, L. D. Smith; lesson on the use of glasses in teaching geography, by W. H. Henderson; at 11 A. M., lecture, "The Schoolmaster President," by Prof. E. S. Carr.

Afternoon—Introduction and discussion of resolutions; final adjournment of the convention.

Lecture on Horticulture.

Last evening Prof. Carr delivered a lecture on horticulture, at the Congregational Church, before the teachers of Los Angeles county and residents of the city. The lecture was an exceedingly interesting one and closely followed by the large audience. Prof. Carr pronounced horticulture a profession. Just as much as the law or medicine, and requiring just as much study. The successful horticulturist, in order to bring forth the varied beauties of nature, must be posted in botany, geology, entomology, chemistry, mineralogy, meteorology, etc., and at the same time be possessed of artistic taste. Horticulture should be one of the leading studies in our public schools, both on account of its intrinsic utility and its refining influences.

The lecturer called to mind the beautiful gardens that existed centuries ago in Persia and India; to horticulture in Palestine where every inch of surface had to be diligently cultivated; to the horticultural taste and skill of the old Roman, who, luxurious in everything, was an epicure as to flowers and plants, cultivating the grape alone in over one hundred varieties. The Chinese invented landscape gardening and the modern gardens in China and Japan today stand unexcelled. He eloquently alluded to the horticulture of the Aztecs in Mexico, reciting the fact that one day in each year was devoted to the planting of trees—an example worthy of imitation in California at this day.

For the past century the progress in horticulture has been most gratifying, and miracles have been wrought in the last fifty years. In Europe at this day more time and money are devoted to horticulture than all the other arts put together. Here in California, with her rich inheritance from all the lands and all the zones, the people must awake to the value of horticulture as regards both health and morals—botanical gardens must be established and botany and its kindred sciences allowed fair play in our schools.
